

To whom it may concern:

I am very concerned by any attempts to limit XM radios right to broadcast local information, traffic, weather, and other vital information. I pay for XM radio service, just as if I was "paying" by listening to annoying commercial announcements, or by donating to endless fund raisers on public broadcasting stations. At this time I have XM receivers in both my cars and also in my house. By limiting XMs right to broadcast, you are infringing on their right of free speech and on their right to operate in a competitive business environment.

While I am not normally politically active, this will become an important issue for me. Even more important than overseas wars. These kinds of actions clearly impinge on my quality of life as a citizen and are not to be considered lightly.
